WRITING

As the plane flew lower, Lou saw the golden beaches of the island below.

After he successfully landed the plane on this deserted island, he started exploring the unknown. As he had compass, he decided to go south-west. There he found nothing really interesting and new, except beautiful tropical plants, trees and lizards.

He thought it was a good idea to rest here, so he did it. He was sitting on the ground next to a some kind of tree and enjoying local warm weather. After his little break, he started to feel hungry and thirsty, so he came back to his plane, which had a fridge with some food in it. He had a great lunch and felt tired, so he went to bed and fell asleep quite fast.

The next day Lou finally decided to ask for help using his radio.
